How to use wella koleston perfect special mix

If you thought beige was boring, think again. When it comes to beige blonde hair, the colour becomes something else entirely; bright, light and show-stopping, from root to tip. The soft-focus hue looks especially flawless in winter, when the cooler light enhances its dreamy radiance, casting a light-reflective sheen that makes beige the blonde of the season. Here's what you need to know about this trending colour... Author Topic: How to use the Wella Koleston perfect? (Read 28860 times) Tweet Share 0 Members and 1 Guest are viewing this topic. Created & Maintained by Beeunique © 2009-2021 Hi everyone, I'm studying NVQ2 and I'm looking to tone my own hair grey, so bought special mix in 0/11, but when I came home and read the leaflet inside, it says I need to mix colour crème (Koleston perfect plus special mix) with welloxon perfect? I have no idea what these are as ive never used Wella before. I'm assuming one of them is their peroxide? I have attached a picture of the leaflet aswel if ive not explained it very well. If anyone can help, that would be very much appreciated! You haven't added the pic x You can use it on its own with pastel x Hi! Show to your tutor at college and ask some advice. O.11 is mixed with pastel developer but alone (e.g not mixed with 10.0) believe it goes quite a dark grey xx Sent from my GT-I9300 using SalonGeek mobile app Why are you set on using special mix /11 to tone What colour is your hair now? Colour 8/81 comes out really grey x My hair is just a light yellow from bleaching yesterday, and purely because thats what ive bought and don't want to waste it I personally use Schwarzkopf Igora...but have worked with Wella before. The mixtone alone will really darken your hair, if your hair is freshly bleached it will suck it up like noones business but fade really quickly. I'd never use a pure mixtone to tone, they're simply too strong and will grab far too much. I used to use 12/81 for a really silvery, platinum effect, but if you want to put your mixtone to use, maybe buy a 12/0, and 2:1 with the base? That should give you a nice grey tone. In future though, Igora's 9.5 - 22 is perfect for a blue/grey effect! Is use the steel silver from these cocktails posted a few months ago by a great geek! Hi geeks just thought id post my colouring cocktails on: D* You VISUALLY develop; these have been tried and tested: D Have fun! Try a 10/81 color fresh or a 10/8 in koleston for this effect. Why do you use a high lift tint to tone Hun just out out interest? 10 line and pastel would be better x Was just the way I was taught...they told me to use the 12 line, mix 1:2 with either 3% or 1.9% I use the 9.5 pastel range to tone with now! Didn't mean to give bad advice, it's just how I was taught! Didn't mean to give bad advice, it's just how I've always done it and it's worked okay for me! Wella don't do 3% so surly they didnt teach you to use a non branded peroxide And 1.9 is colour touch so I'm confused And it's not your fault your just saying what you have been taught but that's what this forum is about giving people the correct advise an how to do things better thats all ☺ If I was to ever witch I never have and never will use a high lift to time then I would more and Likey use pastel is that what you ment pastel is 2.9 x Wella don't do 3% so surly they didnt teach you to use a non branded peroxide And 1.9 is colour touch so I'm confused And it's not your fault your just saying what you have been taught but that's what this forum is about giving people the correct advise an how to do things better thats all ☺ If I was to ever witch I never have and never will use a high lift to time then I would more and Likey use pastel is that what you ment pastel is 2.9 x To tone* Wella don't do 3% so surly they didnt teach you to use a non branded peroxide And 1.9 is colour touch so I'm confused And it's not your fault your just saying what you have been taught but that's what this forum is about giving people the correct advise an how to do things better thats all ☺ If I was to ever witch I never have and never will use a high lift to time then I would more and Likey use pastel is that what you ment pastel is 2.9 x I got taught with Scwharzkopf in college who do have 3%...and their version of Colour Touch is Vibrance/Viviance which uses 1.9. When I started at the salon that used Wella, they never taught me any different so I just carried on as they used Sally's peroxide. The place changed hands and started using XP-100 shortly before I left and you can imagine how that went! Thank you for your advice. Even though I now use Igora 9.5 pastels exclusively to tone, I had no idea that the 12 series weren't suitable for toning! Also Ive only worked in 1 salon where theyve actually had the wella/schwarzkopf matching peroxide in stock!!! Xx You arent supposed to apparently but i know a lot of people that tone with the 12/ range. Not sure why instead of the 10 or 9. Also Ive only worked in 1 salon where theyve actually had the wella/schwarzkopf matching peroxide in stock!!! Xx Many people does cause they think that will gain only the tones which are in chosen 12 series and not changing the base tone, also at last salon i used to work recently they used nonbranded peroxydes shampoo and conditioners,the worst of the worst!my hands had burn marks every time i was made to refill branded bottles so people have the thought of only great products are used. Unfortunately that bad habit is used by the majority of salons here in athens,also now on they use non brand or wellknown hairdyes instead of big brands which they claim to do or publish!:evil: Means of payment accepted CB, Visa, MasterCard, Paypal, Aurore, virement...
